Improvement Plan's Focus Underground

By Frank Messina

Whatever major projects are chosen for the next five-year capital improvements phase, one thing is clear—the glamour days of high-profile renovations are over for now.

Instead of the richly refurbished Old Town Hall or the soft pastels of a made-over Memorial Hall Library, both renovations completed in the past year, Andover residents could be seeing plenty of plain, black asphalt through the mid-1990s.

Road improvements and water main and sewer replacement are among the highlights of a strictly meat-and-potatoes menu of potential capital improvement projects listed in a report issued by the town last month.

Although the inch-thick document focuses on establishing guidelines and priorities for capital improvements through 1995, the 30 project proposals contained represent the first public glimpse at possible major town improvements in the next decade.

The town hall "wish list" requests range from a $300,000 investment in portable radios for all police officers to an unspecified amount of money for a town community services center.

But by far the most expensive decision facing the town is how much money to plant in the ground. For example:

•It will cost roughly $7 million to bring Andover streets up to speed, says Robert McQuade, director of public works. A survey completed last year showed several roads badly in need of repair.

•A fully extended sewer system

Summer Days Draw To Close

School Committee Approves Budget Cuts, Over 20 Layoffs

By Lisa A. Boudreau

Like the town, the Andover school department will have to hand out pink slips and trim salary and expense figures to balance its budget. The School Committee rolled up its sleeves Tuesday night and wrestled with the impact of the $500,000-plus cuts in local aid from the state announced by Gov. Michael Dukakis three weeks ago.

In a unanimous vote of 4-0—Chairman Margo Tilghman being absent—the committee voted to cut:

•One Doherty Middle School housemaster;

•$8,000 from athletics and student activities;

•$30,000 from the administrative intern program;

•One media librarian;

•A half-time English as a second language teacher;

•One full- and one half-time regular classroom teachers, one at the fifth-grade level at the Bancroft Elementary School and the other at the Early Childhood Center;

•A half-time foreign language teacher;

•Five aides, which will save $50,000;

•One secretary;

•One custodian;

•Noon-hour supervisors' program at the elementary schools;

•Andover High School hall monitors.

"These cuts (in state aid) couldn't have come at a worse time. We're ready to start school," said School Superintendent Kenneth Seifert. "What we did is try to come up with what will least hurt the school system."

Francis Paul, assistant superintendent for operations, estimated that the $570,000 total cuts in aid would average out to a 5½-percent reduction in expenses and a little over 2-percent reduction in salary costs.

"We hope these will have a very minimal effect on classrooms. Within that level of reductions people will have to make better use of the materials they have," he said.

Mr. Paul estimated that 22 to 25 people will lose their jobs as a result of the reductions in the department's budget. He said that medical and

Firefighting Academy Graduate

Andover Firefighter Donald Hinckley graduated from the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy's seven-week recruit firefighting program. The program, which is offered tuition-free to municipal firefighters in the state, is designed to provide new firefighters with the basic skills necessary to ensure effective performance in their jobs, said Andover Fire Chief Harold Hayes.

The graduation exercises marked the conclusion of an intensive and in-depth program. The students' primary concern was learning basic firefighting skills, but they were also introduced to more advanced topics, such as public fire education training, hazardous materials and stress management.

Students receive classroom training in all the basic firefighting skills such as ladders, hose and protective breathing apparatus, and the classroom training is reinforced by performing practical field evolutions, under non-fire conditions and then during controlled fire conditions. By graduation, students have had practical, hands-on experience with live fires in buildings and vehicles and have successfully fought these fires as effectively and safely as possible.

Completes Leadership Training With ROTC

Cadet Steven J. Flett received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp in Fort Bragg, N.C.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard.

Cadet Flett is the son of Aleck J. Fleet of Eaton Park, Fla., and Rhea Cataldo of 2 Clover Circle.

West School Registration

The West Elementary School office will be open for student registration weekdays through Aug. 31 from 9 .m. to 11:45 a.m. Students must supply a copy of their birth certificates, records of immunization and transfer slips from the school they last attended.

Homeroom lists for the 1989-90 school year will be posted on the Beacon Street entrance Aug. 29. It will not be possible to give out assignments over the telphone.

Clothing Requirements

Andover public schools physical education clothing requirements this year mandate that a student must have a change of clothes which includes a T-shirt, athletic shorts and sneakers. A standardized 'Andover' uniform is not required.

Fire, Police Stations Warn Against Unofficial Solicitors

Andover fire and police departments have received inquiries concerning someone soliciting funds for both public safety agencies.

Officials of both departments emphasize they are not involved in any public solicitation of funds, nor do they endorse any efforts in that regard.

One local businessman questioned the solicitor about having a Lawrence address, and the person replied he was an Andover firefighter, but did his paperwork in Lawrence.

Deputy Fire Chief Charles Murnane was emphatic that the Andover fire department is not involved in any way with solicitation or endorsements and that he had checked with Andover police, who likewise are not involved in any fund-raising activity.

Middle Schools Students To Register Next Week

Soon-to-be sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders new to the Andover school system have to register next week.

If you live in the Doherty Middle School district, registration will take place at the school on Wednesday, Aug. 30, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

West Middle School will hold registration each day during the week of Aug. 28 from 8 a.m. to noon. Parents should bring in their child's most recent report card from his or her previous school, as well as any other pertinent information.

Auditions Scheduled

The Department of Community Services will hold auditions for "Confetti Kids" on Thursday, Sept. 7, at 3:30 p.m. at the West Elementary School auditorium. Children must be accompanied by an adult. Membership is for children in grades three through nine.

Children should be prepared to perform a simple monologue, such as a nursery rhyme, child's poem or dramatic interpretation. Participants will be chosen for poise, dramatic ability and voice quality. "Confetti Kids" will meet Thursdays in West Elementary School's music room from 3:15 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Further information may be obtained through DCS or Josie Walker. Do not call West Elementary School.

100 Artists To Participate

Andovers Artists Guild Inc and the Department of Community Services invites the public to the 14th annual Art In The Park on Saturday, Sept. 16, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Central Park (rain date, Sunday, Sept. 17).

This fine arts show of more than 100 New England artists will feature paintings in all media, graphics, photogaphy, drawings and sculpture. The artists will compete for ribbons and cash awards in all categories.

Food concessions, free parking and restroom facilities will be provided on the grounds. Proceeds go the guild's scholarshiip fund.

School Cuts

building insurance and retirement funds will not be touched.

Michael Frishman, acting chairman for Tuesday night's meeting, said that some of the sting of the layoffs will be lessened because the first to go will be positions that were not filled.

"It's never painless when people lose their jobs, but there will be a minimal amount of pain, we hope, due to the number of unfilled positions," he said.

Dr. Seifert reminded both the audience and the committee that as bad as the cuts seem now, they are by no means a one-year fix.

"As an administration we are convinced that this is the first phase of a nunmber of phases" in dealing with the widening gaps in local aid from the state, he said.

"We've done the best job we could since it's (the list of total state cuts) been tossed in our laps a short while ago," said committeeman Richard Hubbell.

As a result of long-term repercussions of these cuts, he cautioned people to be prepared for what would be likely to come next year.

"We've been able to maintain all the sacred cows," said Mr. Hubbell, referring to the fact that teacher-student ratios were not greatly affected by the cuts this time around and busing was not affected at all.

When the committee discussed the probability of future cuts, some audience members raised concerns about community involvement in maintaining quality education in Andover.

"You're talking about long-term planning. What role will the community have in this?" asked Jane Nosbusch of 23 Orchard Crossing.

Mr. Frishman reminded the audience that whenever budget cuts are considered, the committee discusses the issue in its regular open meeting and encourages residents' questions and suggestions. Mr. Hubbell pointed out that, although no "sacred cows" had not been sacrificed this year, that doesn't protect them in the future.

"If you want a lot of people to come to School Committee meetings," Mr. Hubbell said, "drop a bus (from a bus route).

"Another suggestion I have is that you vote because we both know that most people don't."

Joanne Marden, chairman of the Finance Committee, who was in the audience, said a tentative joint meeting of the town's three boards (selectmen, School Committee and FinCom) has been set for the last week in September to look at the overall fiscal picture.

Girls' Soccer Holds Tryouts

The Andover High School girls' soccer team will hold pre-season tryouts Monday, Aug. 28, at 8 a.m. in the West Middle School field.

Freshmen are welcome to try out. Balls, sneakers and cleats are required.

Swim Tryouts Coming Up

Ninth- through 12th-graders interested in joining the Andover High School girls' swimming and diving team should report to the Greater Lawrence Technical School pool on Monday, Aug. 28, at 8 a.m.

Correction

Nancy Collins, one of the directors of the Andover Endowment for the Arts, was incorrectly identified in the Aug. 17 issue of The TOWNSMAN.

Ms. Collins is the granddaughter of the late J. Everett Collins. The AEA oversees the performing arts center named for Mr. Collins.

Andover Products On Exhibit

Jugs and crocks, like the ones shown here from the collections of the Andover Historical Society, were made by the Ballardvale Stoneware Manufacturing Co. in Andover during the 1880s and '90s.

"Made in Andover," the Andover Historical Society's fall exhibit, will explore the wide range of products made in the town from the 17th century to the present. Long known for their business enterprise, Andover craftsmen and manufacturers have produced everything from decorative and household objects to personal accessories, textiles and related machinery, leather goods, paper and books, toys and dolls and even ice cream and yogurt.

A non-profit, educational institution, accredited by the American Association of Museums, the Andover Historical Society has a dedicated and enthusiastic corps of volunteers who assist in researching, installing and interpreting two major exhibitions each year, said Charlotte Smith, the society's director. New volunteers are always welcome.

The exhibit and research committees are delving into the society's museum and library collections for information and artifacts relating to local artisans,

Police Receive Honor

The Andover Police Department won an honorable mention in the 1989 best-dressed police department competition sponsored annually by the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers and Distributors.

The program honors law enforcement departments that exhibit the highest standards of uniform dress and overall appearance. An independent panel of law enforcement and garment experts evaluates entries on the basis of image projection, immediate recognition, reflection of the authority and professionalism of the department, practicality and policies requiring uniform standards and regular inspections, association officials said.

Awards are given in five categories: federal, state, county, city with more than 200 officers and municipality with less than 200 officers. The Andover Police Department was awarded an honorable mention in the city under 200 officers category.

"First impressions have a lasting effect," observed NAUMD Executive Director Bernard J. Lepper. "Because law enforcement officers are highly visible, their appearance can immediately command respect and play an important role in their work. Professionalism must, therefore, be displayed in an officer's appearance as well as his or her duties.

"In the opinion of the NAUMD, the Andover Police Department has demonstrated its commitment to creating a professional image within its ranks and to the community it serves. We are proud to have the opportunity to honor such a worthy department."

Judges for the 1989 best-dressed police department competition were Patrick DeMare, Jr., manager of the New York custom and uniform tailors division of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union; Lt. Arthur Jacobs of the office of the Chief of the New York City Police Department; and Scott Kinwill, publisher of Law and Order magazine.

The latter includes Craighead and Kinz, Tyer Rubber, Hardy Brush, Redmond Card Clothing, American Woolen, Marland, Bradlee and Smith and Dove mills, Andover Press, Conroy Leather and Watson Park, to name a few.

"We hope to be able to exhibit sample products as well as related advertisements, postcards and photographs," Ms. Smith said. "Our collections are extensive in some areas but incomplete in others, so we would appreciate your help."

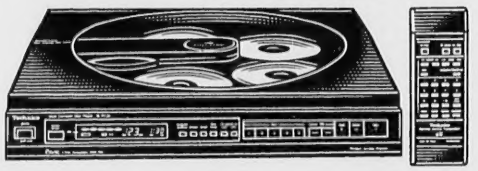

Anyone who has any objects known to have been made in Andover or documents about local craftsmen or manufacturers past or present that the society may borrow temporarily should call Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or contact a research/exhibit committee member (Robin Sung, Margaret Roberts, Karen Herman, Dot Tavern, Norma Gammon) as soon as possible. The Historical Society is looking for Craighead and Kintz souvenir items and Patty Comfort dolls featuring a Tyer Rubber Co. hot water bottle inside. "Made in Andover" will be on view at the society's 97 Main St. headquarters from late October through mid-April.

Children's Programs Conclude

Summer programs at the children's room at Memorial Hall Library ended last week with Friday celebrations and a Wednesday storytelling concert by Doug Lippman. Children who participated in the "Hats Off" reading program and have not picked up their certificates of achievement and charts may do so at any time.

Children's librarians Bridget Bennett, Kate Belczyk and Barbara Mortenson encourage all children who do not have their own library cards to register before school begins. Young library patrons have to be able to write both first and last names and have a parent's signature to get a card.

Children who have lost their cards may get a replacement for $1. Having a library card provides access to books, encyclopedias and other reference material, as well as magazines, tapes, records and puzzles.

A collection of puffins and puffin items lent by staff member Darlene Antonucci is on display in the lobby area. Ms. Antonucci recently visited Seal Island off the coast of Maine where this endangered bird is being reintroduced.

Samaritans Need Volunteers

The Samaritans of the Merrimack Valley are recruiting volunteers for their 24-hour crisis telephone lines. The next preparation class will begin Wednesday, Sept. 6, at 6:30 p.m. at the center, 55 Jackson St., Lawrence. The opportunity is a good one for retired people looking for a significant way to volunteer their time, said Samaritans staff members.

About 65 volunteers are needed each month to maintain the Samaritans' toll-free access to lonely, despairing and suicidal people who call. All volunteers must participate in a seven-week preparation course and give about 25 hours of time each month to listening and befriending on the phones. The minimum age for volunteers is 20.

Last year volunteers answered more than 34,000 phone calls. The Samaritans also provide two support groups: Safe Place for families who have lost someone by suicide and Concerned Friends for those living with a depressed family member. Volunteers also visit the Lawrence House of Correction each week to befriend and support suicidal inmates.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer should call the Samaritans.

Boating Course To Be Offered

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary will present Boating Skills and Seamanship, a 13-week course in boating safety, in Room C-115 at Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill beginning Tuesday, Sept. 12, at 7 p.m. Topics will include navigation rules, aids to navigation, legal requirements, piloting and the marine radio. Certificates will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

For further information, call in the evening Jim Thomas in Merrimac, Dave Gregory in Lawrence or Gene Bernstein in Tyngsboro.

At The Playgrounds

South: The week started with practice for air band competition. We decided to just dance around. Elizabeth Tung, Meghan Lynch and Zack Smith were awesome. Wednesday was the competition. The standouts were "Joy to the World" by West playground, Drew's Madonna impersonation and Bancroft's version of Guns N' Roses. Hamburgers and hot dogs filled the grill for hours on Thursday's cookout. The ice cream party on Friday lasted the whole day, along with goodbyes.

Sanborn: The winners of Monday's egg toss were Marcy Ruda and Joe Shea. Friendship bracelets were made in lots of interesting ways. Julie, the counselor, designed her own stitch, which became very popular. Practice for the air band competition on Wednesday was held on Monday and Tuesday. Some of the best tie-dying was done by Chris and Kathleen Cahill. A big game of baseball was held with Jill Ophenheim, Josh Reef and Justin Yee the top hitters. The air band competition was held in Central Park on Wednesday. Special apearances were made by the Dixie Cups (Julie, Jen, Keri, Kristie, Susie, Lindsay, Jessica, Julie and Kathleen); Dino (Ellen, Shannon and Amy); Millie Vanillie (Brian and Spig); Guns n' Roses (Allan): Paula Abdul (Keri and Vicky); Do You Love Me (Jessica, Drew, Marcy and Ellen); Big Girls Don't Cry (Maura, Amy and Jessica); Madonna and Choir (Drew, Marcy, Ellen and Amy); and New Kids on the Block (Kara and Sarah). Thursday was crafts day and everyone's imagination went wild. Many interesting things were made. Friday was "make your own sundae" day and the last day of playground.

Bancroft: The last week came to an end. We celebrated and said sad goodbyes with ice cream on Friday. There was a full week of bombardment and kickball. Friendship bracelets were made on Thursday. The high point of the week was the air band competition in The Park. Leslie, Erin and Kerry did songs from AC/DC and Guns n' Roses.

West Elementary: The week started with practice for the air band competition and the making of costumes. Some awesome shirts and shorts were tie-dyed on Tuesday. Chad Mongeau, Lisa Chang and Sabina Barry made just a few of them. West stole the show on Wednesday at The Park with a performance of "Joy to the World," starring Eddie, Michelle Houghton, Greg Peters, Billy Deluca and Jeff Arsenault. Friendship bracelets were made on Thursday and there was a cookout. Ice cream sundaes were made on Friday and tearful goodbyes were said.

Shee-Hee/Shaw-Nee: Monday was "hat day." Rachael Simile, Sara Jenike, Doug Johnson and Scott Lundgren all brought in beautiful hats for the parade. Tuesday everyone tie-dyed and painted t-shirts to make a real '60's atmosphere. Wednesday was for chalk pictures and show-and-tell. Courtney Reed brought in her pretty pony; Mathew Landon brought in his bear. Eric Jenike also brought in some exciting stuff. The children enjoyed sprinklers on Wednesday to cool off. Exotic collages were made with all the leftover crafts on Thursday. Amy McLaughlin, Dominick Palumbo, Corey Hayes and Lauren Woo made some of the most creative. Friday an ice cream party celebrated the last day of camp.

Ha-Kow-Wee: Monday and Tuesday were busy with lip-syncing and instrument-making by Jeff Irvine, Tara Locke, Steph Ciampa and others. A variety of air bands—from Guns n' Roses to Billy Joel—made appearances on Wednesday. Thursday and Friday ended with ice cream sundaes and a final cookout at Pomps Pond.

Language Pathologist Speaker

Eileen M. Peyton, a speech-language pathologist, will be the featured speaker at Northeast Rehabilitation Hospital's "First Tuesday" educational forum on Sept. 5 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

"As clinicians, our basic long-term goals for clients of all ages is to maximize communicative abilities," says Ms. Peyton. In recent years the human potential and holistic health movements have researched strategies to help people perform at peak level, she said. Her presentation applies these strategies using a "whole-brain" approach in therapy.

Ms. Peyton has been a practicing speech-language pathologist for 11 years and in private practice in Georgetown. She has studied and taught peak performance techniques since 1980 to clinicians, clients and the business community.

Northeast Rehab in Salem, N.H., has established the "First Tuesday" complimentary educational forum for health-care professionals throughout the Merrimack Valley. An expert in allied health care will address the forum on the first Tuesday of each month. The program will offer CEUs for nurses and licensed practical nurses.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

What is substitute care? Substitute care comes in many forms. It can be in the form of a nanny, a well-trained person who may spend 40 or more hours a week in the child's home as the primary caretaker of the child. It includes situations where such a person cares for someone else's child exclusively in her own home. By far the most common form of substitute care is what is called family day care, where a woman will care for four to ten or more children of varying ages in her own home. If you have the option of part-time substitute care, consider that the majority of a baby's waking hours should be spent with the parents or grandparents. This arrangement gives the baby the best beginning in life.

Be Aware Of Electrical Dangers

Every year thousands of people are hurt because they're careless with electricity. Mass. Electric would like to remind customers of all ages about the dangers of coming in contact with electricity.

"Without electricity our lives would certainly not be the same, but accidents can occur when we forget some basic rules," said Edward E. Mulligan, president of Mass. Electric. "We are at a time of year when we still spend quite a bit of time outdoors and we should remember that electricity can be dangerous."

Some tips for electrical safety include:

• If a ball or othe toy goes over a substation fence, don't climb over the fence to retrieve it. Call Mass. Electric to retrieve it for you.

• Never fly kites or toy planes under or over electric wires or poles. They ould become entangled. Never climb a pole to retrieve the toy—call Mass. Electric to retrieve it.

• Don't climb trees near electric wires or poles. You could come into contact with a power line, causing severe injury.

• Never use electric tools or toys outside in wet wether or near swimming pools. Water conducts electricity and creates a safety hazard.

• Always unplug anything electric by pulling the plug, not the cord. Don't touch frayed electric cords or broken plugs; you could receive an electrical shock.

Be careful when using electrical appliances, such as hair dryers, curling irons or radios, in the bathroom. Be sure your hands are dry and the cord does not get wet or fall into water.

NORTHERN ESSEX COMMUNITY COLLEGE

James Hart of Merrimac did – so can you!

Jim Hart is the Sales Engineer for the Henschel Company in Newburyport. He started there as a computer technician working on classified navigation projects for submarines. "I kept moving in the company," Jim says, "from technician to field service representative to project technician and then Henschel created my present position because I understood electronics from the inside out. I got my background at Northern Essex."

Jim always planned to go into electronics and later to study marketing. "I enrolled in NECC's Computer Maintenance program and got a well-rounded base – digital as well as hard core electronics – just what I needed, it turned out." Jim graduated from NECC in 1985.

Jim says his courses were hard work, but he made new friends and they arranged their class schedules so that they could help each other out. "We also did school trips together to relax."

Jim is on his way to a bachelor's degree now (studying part time) and plans to go on to a master's degree. "I love my job," Jim says, "but I never would have got it without my NECC degree – knowledge about electronics isn't something you just pick up along the way."

To Present Historic Exhibit

The Museum of Transportation in Larz Anderson Park, 15 Newton St., Brookline, is presenting Putting America on Wheels: New England Paves the Way, the first exhibit ever to explore the social, cultural and technological climate that fostered the emergence of the automobile in America. Twenty-four mint-condition, New England-made automobiles, period artifacts, antiques, photos, music and film clips will be on display through Feb. 25.

The museum also offers a series of active and informative education programs. A special program in September invites seniors to step back in time and visit a Victorian carriage house. A guided tour and slide presentation of Larz and Isabel Anderson's famous estate, 100-year-old carriage house and collection recalls the cultural and economic climate at the turn of the century. Advance reservations are required. Family Discovery Tour shows visitors to the filling station, a hands-on activity center with a working antique gas pump, climb-on Model T, police motorcycle and a bicycle built-for-two. Childen can tap their imaginations in the inventions workshop on weekends from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and create a car-of-the-future using recycled materials.

The Museum of Transportaion is open Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Camper Assistance Offered

The Department of Environmental Management has established a camper assistance hotline to provide campers with information on campsite availability in the Massachusetts forests and parks system throughout the Columbus Day weekend.

Beginning Friday, Aug. 25, campers may call (617) 727-3189 from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

The Department maintains 34 camping areas across the state. For specific information or to receive a free brochure on campgrounds, call or write the DEM Division of Forests and Parks, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

Dr. Zwerling completed a fellowship in endocrinology at Massachusetts General Hospital. He received his undergraduate degree from Cornell University, master of science degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and medical degree from the State University of New York at Syracuse.

Burning pain in the ball of your foot may not be as serious as you think.

The ball of your foot burns and cramps. Nothing seems to eliminate the pain. But you don't have the time or energy to have a doctor look at it, let alone put you out of commission for corrective surgery.

Persons of all ages commonly experience neuromas (entrapped or pinched nerves). Neuromas can be treated simply and decisively with steriod injections to reduce the swelling. If surgery is needed, it can be accomplished on an outpatient basis.

Laser surgery is now an effective technique for neuroma excision.

When your feet hurt, come to professionals who specialize in total foot care.

EARTHFOOD NEWS

by Glenda McKertich

RECOMMENDED READING

Consumers should be aware that "U.S. R.D.A." and "R.D.A." are two distinct designations. The former nutrient information shorthand was developed by the Food and Drug Administration for use on food package labels. It stands for "U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance." U.S. R.D.A.'s are derived from the more specific Recommended Dietary Allowances (R.D.A.'s) developed by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences. R.D.A.'s are issued for ten vitamins, six minerals, and protein. They are updated on a regular basis, and are designed to provide a margin of safety between the amount needed to prevent deficiency and produce toxicity. R.D.A.'s take into account the nutritional needs of healthy people in ten different population groups, according to age, sex, and special needs.

R.D.A.'s, however, do not take into account anyone with special needs or deficiencies in a given vitamin or mineral. Since no one is truly "average" adjust your vitamin intake to your needs. Visit THE EARTHFOOD STORE, 24 Park St., behind "old" town hall. We carry vitamins and supplements and natural beauty products as well as healthy groceries. Fresh salads, sanwiches, and baked goods are available. Call 475-1234. There's plenty of parking.

P.S. Pregnant and breast-feeding women are not figured into U.S. R.D.A.'s.

Career Workshop At ULowell

A career development workshop, sponsored by the University of Lowell Division of Continuing Education, will be held Monday, Aug. 28, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Evans Lounge on the second floor of Falmouth Hall on the university's North Campus.

The free workshop will address issues such as setting career and educational goals, assessing interests and abilities and how courses and programs at the University of Lowell continuing education can help these goals become realized. Joan Kilday, student services coordinator for continuing education and instructor in community education, will lead the workshop. She hopes "to give students anticipating a return to school or unsure about their future an insight into their interests and abilities, which could, in turn, help them choose the right classes or program to suit their needs."

To register for the workshop or receive information about other programs offered, call the continuing education office.

Before... and After

See a difference between these two pictures? A potential killer was living in the left until PELICAN ENVIRONMENTAL CORPORATION made a house call.

Radon, a tasteless, odorless, colorless radioactive gas is making itself right at home in one out of every four properties in Massachusetts. Legislators are not only calling for mandatory radon testing, but, by 1991, they're hoping no property will be bought or sold without the test results made known to the buyer. But there's something PELICAN can do about it right now.

Through state-of-the-art technology, PELICAN'S trained specialists can reduce the levels of radon in your home quickly and effectively. In less than one week, your home will look, feel and sound much like it did. With one exception. Your unwanted houseguest will be on its way out.

If yours is the home on the left, move to the right with Massachusetts' most experienced radon mitigation specialists. Now what you can't see can't hurt you.

ENTERTAINMENT

Evening Of Live Art, Music Set For Newburyport

Years ago some in the art field had what were then called "sketch parties." Twenty or so friends and at least a few artists gathered to create, paint and generally have a good time.

The concept evolved in French Quebec and especially in the Montreal art scene. The last few years have seen an explosion of live art events with live music and an auction of the finished work.

Art Alive '89 is a casually structured group of area artists from Newburyport, the North Shore, Andover and Boston. Art Alive '89 is billed as 'an evening of live art and music' with a live art auction Sunday, Aug. 27, at 4 p.m. at 20 Cherry St., Newburyport.

As many as 20 visual artists will work at their easels leaned against trees and otherwise do their art in what promoter Susanne Richardson calls "a unique opportunity to interact with working artists."

Ms. Richardson was involved with live art events in Montreal over the past years and recently relocated to Newburyport.

The music of Roger Ebacher, noted Newburyport jazz musician, will accompany the painting.

Enrico Donati of Donati Gallery in the Tannery in Newburyport will auction the work at sunset.

Among the artists represented are William Rogers of William Rogers Backdrops and the Eliza Spencer Gallery; Albert Brodsky of Alberts Studio; Paul Neverette, oil; Sheila King, watercolor; Jeanette Brown Hudson, modern art; Natalie Smith, watercolor; Mark White, cartoonist; Susanne Richardson, portrait artist; and Andrew Richardson, expressionist.

Sponsors for the event include Eliza Spencer Gallery, Enrico Donati Gallery and Kennedy Studios, all of Newburyport.

The Howard Yezerski Gallery, 186 South St., will open its second season in Boston with a portfolio of photographs and etchings by Lee Fiedlander and Jim Dine and an exhibition of figurative terra cotta work by Gayle Fichtinger. Both shows open Sept. 9 and run throughOct 11.

"Photographs and Etchings" is a collaborative work published in 1969, consisting of 16 images. Each sheet contains a photograph by Lee Fieldlander and an etching by Jim Dine. Although 20 years old, the work is pertinent today for several reasons: within recent years the collaborative relationship has become an important expressive vehicle utilized by many artists and elements of Dine and Friedlander's personal vocabulary are evident in this earlier work.

In some respects, however, the work is very much a testament of its time. The specific subject matter in several of the photographs reflects the nation's concerns: the late President John F. Kennedy; civil rights issues, cultural artifacts, such as decals and banners, indicating political temperament.

In her figurative ceramic sculptures, Gayle Fichtinger uses historical formats, such as monumental heads, torsos and still lifes, as groundwork on which her

An opening reception will be held Saturday, Sept. 9, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Showbiz Week Returns To Backstreet

Marcy Downey and Buddy Sebastian of Goodtime Express co-host Shobiz week at Backstreet.

Time to dust off the old derby and cane; Shobiz Week is back.

Goodtime Express Entertainment Services will hold its third monthly Shobiz Week at Backstreet restaurant in Andover Aug. 28 through Sept. 2.

Featuring talent showcases, guest specialty acts and performances by the Goodtime Express five-piece band, Shobiz Week has proven to be a great crowd-pleaser at Backstreet, said co-host Marcy Downey. Amateurs and seasoned talent are all invited to be a part of the fun.

"We're looking for talent, sure, but we're also looking for hidden talent," said Ms. Downey's co-host, Buddy Sebastian. "If you sound great in the shower but never thought you'd get the chance to sing on a real stage, or if you and your friends have a routine you haven't done since college, we want you.

"We're giving everybody the chance to live out their fantasy of performing in front of alive audience. Now's your chance to be a star."

Mr. Sebastian pointed out that the important thing is that everyone has fun being in the spotlight.

Monday and Tuesday will be open audition nights when singers, musicians and lip syncs and novelty acts, to name a few, are invited to participate. Registration is at 8 p.m. (Continued on Page 22)

Bread And Roses Festival To Have Top Entertainment

The Bread & Roses Festival Committee announces the lineup for the Sept. 4 Labor Day Heritage celebration in Lawrence. In addition to headliners Pete Seeger and The Clancy Brothers, the festival will feature music, song and dance.

Flor de Cana (Sugar Cane Flowers) has won rave reviews for their ability to deliver music with a message ranging from infectious salsa rhythms to touching ballads. With roots in Nicaragua, Venezuela and Argentina, they've been described as "a cross between Miami Sound Machine and Brazil 6." They recently opened for Ruben Blades in his only Boston area performance.

The Contemporary Greek Ensemble plays "Rebetiko" style music which was played by the Greeks that emigrated from Asia Minor to Greece in the early 1900s. Traditional Greek folk music and dance favorites, combined with love songs and rousing songs of freedom are played by masters of some of the most artful instruments ever heard.

Lawrence native and New York's "Festival De Vos" award-winner Bill Ray will perform with his band "The Boston Boys" on the evening stage.

"For all the years we've worked on this event as an organization and a community, I've never found myself more excited and anxious to simply attend and participate as an audience member," said John Corliss, Jr., festival director. "In addition to our nationally renowned headliners, we've been fortunate to find dozens of local gifted and solid performers that create the perfect mix for this multi-cultural labor festival."

Pete Seeger is a living legend in American folk music. His legacy includes some milestones in capturing and conveying the ideals of the labor movement, civil rights movement and other people's struggles. Much of his music has become traditional folk song standards, including "If I had a Hammer" and "Where have all the Flowers Gone." "Pete is unique," said Russell Aminzade, festival program director, "His trademark is getting people to sing along. People don't come to see a performance, they come to be a part of one."

The Clancy Brothers with Robbie O'Connell will bring their unique brand of traditional Irish folk songs, children's music, humor and history. They join the innovative duo of Cathy Fink and Marcy Marxer in backing up Pete Seeger in the evening concert.

The Lawrence Common will be filled with music, crafts, storytelling, juggling, magic, mime, ethnic music, food and dance workshops from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Learn to meringue, have your face painted, take part in a play, enjoy a textile arts exhibit, then join the Bread & Puppet Theatre in the procession to Pemberton Park for the evening concert.

For further information or to get involved, contact the Bread & Roses Heritage Committee.

Theatre Group Sets Auditions

The Merrimack Junior Theatre, Inc., in conjunction with the Andover Department of Community Services, will hold auditions for its fall musical production, "Jack and the Beanstalk," Sept. 7 and 8 in the Doherty Middle School auditorium on Bartlet St from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Auditions are open to children in grades two through six. Children should be prepared to act out a short poem or nursery rhyme and sing a few bars of "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" or "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Each child should bring a photograph of himself/herself.

The production will be directed by Josie Walker and produced by Bonnie Plankey and Ken Tamarkin.

Lectures

A slide lecture on an archaeological dig, which uncovered remains of the Church of St. Saturnin in Poitov, France, dating from the 12th century, will kick off the fall Life-Learning program at Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill on Sept. 14.

An afternoon herb festival will be held Thursday, Sept. 21. Participants will learn how to use herbs creatively during the presentation led by Tanya Jackson of the Merrimack Valley Herb Society.

The Life-Learning program is a series of lectures, courses and trips designed for older adults but open to everyone. The free lectures are held at 2 p.m. in the Bentley Library Conference Center.

Parish To Celebrate Renovations

Bishop Alfred Hughes of Lowell, the regional bishop, will visit St. Augustine Church on Sunday, Aug. 27, where he will perform the 11 a.m. Mass.

Bishop Hughes will be celebrating the feast of St. Augustine, patron saint of the parish, as well as blessing the new altar and all the changes in the church, which has undergone extensive renovations in recent months.

Following the Mass and blessing, refreshments will be served, and there will be an opportunity to meet the bishop.

Most of the renovation work on St. Augustine's is complete, except for the heating system, which is being installed, and work on the rectory, which remains to be done.

New ice guards have been installed on the roof of the church and office to prevent snow and ice falls.

A new altar has been built in the sanctuary from parts of the older altar and rail. Chairs and an organ have also been added to the sanctuary.

Attic fans have been installed to exhaust the hot air from the upper church. The attic of the church has also been reinsulated to retain heat. The entire upper and lower churches have been repainted and the wood restored to its natural state.

A new floor and carpet has been placed in the upper church; side altars have been replaced with a baptistery; and a tabernacle has been made from old pews.

A new handicapped accessible bathroom has been put in at the entrance of the church, and a storage area made from the old pews.

New pews without dividers and new kneelers have been placed.

Caterer In Food Fest

A North Andover caterer will be among more than 25 restaurateurs and food purveyors convening on Salem's Winter Island for the first-ever "Taste of the North Shore" food festival.

Danielle Connolly and her business, Absolutely Perfect, which is based in Danvers, will be represented at the Sunday, Aug. 27, festival. The event will run from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Under brightly colored tents, eateries will serve mini-portions of their culinary specialties. Ms. Connolly will serve crunchy turkey salad.

Tickets entitle festival-goers to the food samplings, and proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The tantalizing aromas filling the festival air will include Chinese gourmet offerings, lobster bisque, clam chowder, shrimp kabobs and fried ice cream from a variety of North Shore restaurants.

Soft-rock and folk musicians will perform on the festival's main stage. Scheduled to appear are the Great Rubber Band, Last Call for Blues, Mike Shay and Laurie Molanson, Paul Julian, Brian Maes and Band, James and the Microchip Band, Fran Sheehan and Band and David Pykosz and Band.

The Taste festival is being presented in conjunction with another MDA event, the Boating Against Dystrophy Regatta, a people-powered boating tournament held in Salem Harbor.

Proceeds raised from the event will be presented on the WCVB TV-5 broadcast of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon, scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 3, and Monday, Sept. 4.

School Lunch Price Goes Up

Students at Andover High School and the two middle schools will be paying 25 cents more for their school lunches and 5 cents more for milk, starting in September. The elementary schools' lunch prices will remain the same.

The most recent increase of 15 cents was instituted last year. Now student lunches at secondary schools will cost $1.25 and milk, 30 cents. Lunches for adults at all the schools will also increase a quarter and cost $1.75.

The reason for the second increase in as many years, said Francis Paul, assistant superintendent for operations, was a decrease in revenues from school lunches and an increase in expenditures. Mr. Paul estimates that the price increases will generate an additional $50,000 that will help offset the previous losses.

Director

Alan Shestack announced the appointment of Morton J. Golden as deputy director at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Mr. Golden will be responsible for overseeing the museum's general operations and planning and management of special projects.

As director of the Palm Springs Desert Museum since 1982, Mr. Golden was responsible for the museum's general operations and promoting and conducting its overal programs.

Meeting

The Builders Association of Greater Boston's monthly dinner and meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 7, at Dedham Holiday Inn. The meeting will begin with a social hour at 6:15 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. Reservations are necessary.

Comprehensive Permits Seldom Match Final Project

By Frank Messina

History has shown that the only thing reliable about a comprehensive permit application is its unreliability.

The finished project is an odds-on favorite to change greatly from original plans—if indeed it ever gets off the drawing board. Four of seven applications submitted to the town between 1985 and 1987 were never built.

So when both developer and town planning staff caution that a proposed 187 affordable single-family home subdivision on North Street is rather preliminary, believe them.

"Nothing is set in concrete," said attorney Gerald Cohen, representing developer George Chongris.

"There is about 99 percent left to go," said Town Physical Planner Steve Colyer.

Last week, Mr. Chongris took the first official step, airing his preliminary plans to the public at an Andover Housing Partnership Committee meeting.

What emerged from the meeting was Mr. Chongris' intent to file a comprehensive permit in order to build two single-family homes per acre rather than the zoning bylaw limit of one.

"The area is large enough to go higher than the zoned density allows," said Mr. Cohen of the 80-acre site. However, the Andover attorney added that his client is willing to work jointly with the town on developing the land.

Recently, Mr. Colyer has been working closely with state housing boards on encouraging local solutions to Massachusetts' affordable housing problems. The town planner hopes to ready a town program in the coming months.

The climate for a large affordable housing development would be more agreeable at that time, suggested Mr. Colyer.

"Number one, the town has just come out reacting to seven comprehensive permit (applications)," he said. "Right now we're trying to get a town action plan together so we know where we're going" and provide direction to developers.

But Mr. Cohen said there is plenty of time to become involved with the town. "These things take a year to get off the pipeline," and, "this is a long pipeline. We won't be building until well into 1990."

How much land the developer can build on is another unsettled question. The amount of upland and wetlands on the North Street property will be scrutinized by the conservation commission at an upcoming meeting.

The commission will also look at five wetland crossings marked on the developer's plans.

With two other affordable housing complexes totaling 388 units recently built on North Street, potential traffic congestion is a major concern for neighbors and Mr. Colyer.

"From a psychological standpoint, how much development can the residents stand out there?" asked the town planner. From a physical standpoint, Mr. Colyer is worried about the placement of an entrance to the planned development next to Brookside Estates, a 168-unit complex.

With neither Riverside Commons, with its 220 apartments, or Brookside Estates fully occupied, "we haven't fully realized the impact of those developments yet," said Mr. Colyer.

"I'm sensitive to traffic and utility concerns," said Mr. Cohen. "But I can't see where another 60 to 70 homes (over zoning bylaw limits) is going to create any turmoil."

Mr. Chongris' comprehensive permit application would be significantly different from any of the previous seven in two ways.

His would be the first to build homes rather than condominiums or rental apartments.

"The good point, if there is a good point," said Mr. Colyer, "is that single-family homes are more in the character of the town. Twenty years ago you saw a lot of small cottages in Andover before the housing boom hit."

The density of a single-family subdivision is much lower than apartments or condominiums. "We're talking 2-1 density, rather than 5-1," said Mr. Cohen. Negotiations with comprehensive permit developers were often hostile. Both the town planner and Mr. Cohen stressed the

The University of Lowell Division of Continuing Education will hold a general registration for the 1989 fall term Monday, Aug. 28, through Thursday, Aug. 31, from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Cumnock Hall Auditorium on the North Campus. Late registrations will be accepted through Monday, Sept. 18. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 5. More than 250 college credit courses will be offered in electronics, civil and mechanical engineering technology, industrial technology, mathematics, computer studies and the liberal arts.

Several courses are new to continuing education this term. Industrial archaeology will emphasize the archaeological studies of industries that have played an important role in the lives of New Englanders. As Lowell was the first planned industrial community in America, a primary focus will be the archaeology of the city's textile mills and worker's housing. Lowell mills will be used to study the ways archaeological and documentary research have enriched our understanding of thepeople whose lives revolved around the mills.

A Planet at Risk is aimed at those who wish to understand the important natural systems which control the planet and are endangered by a variety of threats. Designed to allow students to read and research topics of interest to them, the course will focus on major global and national environmental hazards, with emphasis on developing a better understanding of concepts, issues and environmental policy.

Both courses meet one night a week from 7 p.m to 10 p.m. and carry three college credits.

For further information on continuing education programs, contact the continuing education office, Cumnock Hall, 1 University Ave., Lowell.

Board Agrees To Examine Collins Center Rents

By Frank Messina

The Andover Endowment for the Arts made a major concession to community groups Tuesday night as they set the stage for lowering the Collins Center rental fee.

The AEA decided to take a long look at a heavily criticized $1,500 per day fee for using the auditorium and initiate an outreach program for local organizations.

Although they gave no indication how much the fee would be adjusted, board member Jared Clark said there is a profit margin in the $1,500 charge. The AEA indicated they will define its actual costs and determine a new fee rate.

The Andover Theatre Company will be the first to test the water. AEA Chairman Gerald Cohen offered a weekend in February for The Music Man, to be co-produced by ATC and Andover schools.

The theater group will meet this week with AEA staff to negotiate fees and additional rehearsal time.

"There's no way in the world we could spend $1,500 just to come in the door," said Donald Robb, vice president of ATC and a former School Committee member. "We don't make $1,500 in a year, much less a night. It's an impossible hurdle for groups like ours."

The meeting was called in response to complaints that the AEA isn't available to Andover residents.

"What we're getting back from the community is that (the fee) is way out of line for community, nonprofit organizations," said Chairman Gerald Cohen.

Although just a small handful of people showed up, members of a subcommittee appointed to look into Collin Center responded to an AEA invitation to participate.

Asked to comment on public perception of the center's accessibility, subcommittee member Jan Burkholder agreed that fees are viewed as beyond the means of small local groups.

Many residents are also confused and put off by the process of trying to reserve the Collins Center, she said. Some complain of difficulties reaching the AEA office by phone and then getting conflicting quotes from prices given other groups in town.

"There is a perception that the AEA doesn't want community groups in the center," said subcommittee member Jack Dziadul. By verbal and body language signs, the public feels they are told "'this is mine, you can't have it," he said.

"It may simply be a communication problem."

The board expressed a willingness to work with local organizations, Mr. Clark saying: "I think I could support...guidelines for opening up to other community groups."

But, he warned, "I could not support taking our funds and subsidizing other community groups. Our only clear charter is that we operate the AEA and not cost the town any money other than the operation" of the Collins Center.

The AEA also addressed scheduling conflicts with with Andover High School over use of the auditorium.

Principal Wilbur Hixon didn't want to set dates for events covering the whole school as far back as summer.

"There is no way at this time we could come up with all the events we would like to put on at the Collins Center.

"I'm very, very concerned about the role of the high school and the possibility we might have shackles that would hamper" the school's use of the auditorium, he said.

"I don't think anyone is suggesting we lock in every day in the year," responded Mr. Cohen. "One of the goals of this workshop is to increase accessibility."

Mr. Hixon said scheduling conflicts have been resolved in the past. Last year, when stagehands were preparing for that evening's perfor-

Vandals' Spree Costs Town Thousands

By Frank Messina

Police speculate that teen-agers, attracted to isolated Bancroft Elementary School by a large wooden playground complex, are responsible for a scourge of vandalism that has cost the town several thousand dollars this summer.

At least twice in the last month, police say, youths armed with BB guns have peppered Bancroft windows, forcing replacement of several large picture windows.

The latest damage occurred over the weekend, when security guards reported BB holes shot in several windows and graffiti spray-painted on outside walls.

Detective Don Patullo said it was the second time this summer that Bancroft has been a target. In late July, 23 windows with BB holes were replaced.

The seven damaged last weekend brings the summer's total to about 35, a Bancroft janitor said. Each of the windows, many of them large decorative arch and skylight windows, cost between $150 and $500 to replace. Town officials aren't yet certain of the total replacement cost.

The graffiti, a collection of scatological words and phrases, was sprayed at several points in the rear of the school.

Detective Patullo said local youths congregate at the Dragon's Lair playground at Bancroft, although late evening gatherings are prohibited.

"It's becoming an area where kids hang out in evening hours," he said. "We can't pin (the vandalism) on one particular group. We're just going to keep working on it and keep our eyes open."

Marion Shorley Celebrates 100 Years

By Lisa A. Boudreau

Marion Shorley, a staunch Democrat for well over half a century, may not have been thinking about George Bush last November. But President Bush was thinking of her Friday on her 100th birthday. Miss Shorley, a former, longtime resident of Andover, received many other congratulations from well-wishers that day at a centennial tea held in her honor at Prescott House Nursing Home in North Andover, where she now lives.

John Harris, administrator of Prescott House, presented Miss Shorley with birthday wishes from Sens. Edward Kennedy and Nicholas Costello, as well as a special citation from the Massachusetts Senate. Miss Shorley seemed to be more impressed by these than by the telex from the president.

"I'm a Democrat. I didn't even vote for him," she responded.

Born in Melrose, in 1889, she graduated summa cum laude from Tufts University in 1911. Miss Shorley was one of 11 women who graduated that year. After graduation, she continued her education by studying secretarial courses at Simmons College while on her summer break from teaching high school French and German.

Following her graduation from Simmons, she became a secretary at Harvard University Medical School. For 25 years she was executive secretary and assistant to Dr. William Castle, a world-renowned hematologist. Miss Shorley's fluency in five languages were essential to Dr. Castle, who frequently contacted foreign researchers during the course of his studies.

Former Andover resident Marion Shorley celebrates her 100th birthday with students from the North Andover Early Childhood Center.

As part of the birthday celebration, Alan Solomont, executive director of the Prescott House and himself a Tufts graduate, presented Miss Shorley with a scroll on behalf of Tufts President Jean Mayer.

Also present at Miss Shorley's centennial tea were the students of the North Andover Early Childhood Center. The children presented Miss Shorley with a homemade birthday card and sang a few songs.

The grand finale was blowing out the candles on the birthday cake. The children had just enough breath left after serenading Miss Shorley to help her get the job done so everyone could enjoy a slice of cake.

Four friends play a friendly game of volleyball at Pomps Pond. The volleyball court at the pond has seen a lot of action this summer as the sport gains in popularity with town youths.

Town Gets Most Out Of Last Few Summer Days

Department of Public Works employees Dave VanDooren and Bruce Page get one of the town's sanders ready for another cold season, which, in New England, is never far away.

Don Charest of Lawrence and Marco Crugnale of Canton work on the new platform at the Andover train stop. Reynolds Construction of Canton is putting in the new platform, which will make more waiting room for Andover's growing commuter population.

Jim Redmond won't be mowing his lawn much longer as summer winds down. Soon enough, he'll have to trade in the lawn mower for a snow blower.

OPINION

Addressing Necessities

Andover's latest capital improvement planning program contains a number of projects that will not enhance the beauty of the community, but are of considerable necessity.

While town officials and residents question how much major capital improvement may be carried out over the next five years under budgetary constraints, there is little doubt that the thrust of such work must be in the area of roads and utilities.

Major road reconstruction has constantly been put on the back burner for years. When such action takes place, naturally, the catching up work becomes considerably costly.

Current estimates of bringing the roads up to standard is $7 million, which obviously means that the overall project will be put off from year to year, making the total project cost greater than the current estimate.

Greatest attention will probably be given to the town's utilities, particularly the water distribution system.

Current estimated cost of system improvement is set at $15 million, again the work not being undertaken all at once, thus putting off the inevitable and increasing the total cost in the long run.

In many areas of town the water pipes have been in the ground for almost a century and are badly in need of replacement and updating with modern distribution lines.

The old pipes—which should get priority treatment once the capital improvement program is initiated—lead, not only to murky water being pumped into homes, but decreased pressure caused by buildup of scale in the pipes over the years.

There is little doubt the problem should be examined and addressed as soon as possible and with adequate financial planning.

The big problem in the financial planning of such major projects is that federal and state programs that once assisted such improvement programs no longer exist and the town will have to virtually go it alone.

There is also need for improvements to the existing sewer program as well as extensions of the system to provide such service to those who must rely on septic systems for sanitary facilities.

In this regard there is some financial return through betterment assessments to those who are provided with the service.

One of the difficulties of developing a capital improvement program is that it allows a community to prioritize its needs and have an overview of projects that will have to wait for attention.

This presents such problems as sacrificing building maintenance, an item most often disregarded in favor of other projects, until such time as necessity produces the need to replace roofs or major equipment in schools or other public buildings.

The capital planning program, as it stands at the moment, shows that the town cannot look forward to much in the way of glamorous work over the next five years, simply addressing some rather important needs.

Hopefully, there will be some attention given to overall maintenance of municipal facilities during this period, but, indeed, such considerations will be of minor importance from the current overview of the needs of the town.

Just A Thought

By Bob Finneran

It seems unfortunate that towns throughout the commonwealth are faced with budget cutoffs, leading to layoffs and curtailed services in some cases.

Andover was hit with some difficult decisions last week, with more in the offing with respect to personnel.

One such victim of the curtailment of funds, caused more by state mismanagement than inappropriate budget control locally, is the head of the Department of Community Services.

Joan Pearson has done an excellent job of directing a department and providing a multitude of services for town residents.

While most of the program will continue to operate and some of the services continued, it will take considerable effort to do the job of Ms. Pearson, who was actively involved in all phases of the DCS program and worked with the school department in any number of areas.

Not one to shy from controversy, Joan constantly put forth her views and defended positions on any number of subjects if she felt the town was deserving of a program or needed to initiate new procedures.

The most recent instance, of course, was the debate surrounding the Shawsheen Extended Day Care program, a day care facility for Andover residents.

Involved in the defense of the program, Ms. Pearson had to do battle with neighbors and others opposed to creation of such a service for the townspeople.

In the end, she won out, principally due to the tenacity of speaking out and outlining the advantages of SHED.

Her services, of course, will be missed, but the town has been better for her activity in the formation and direction of her department, which now falls to what may well be considered the continued employment of people at the state level, while more able persons at the local plateau of government must be sacrificed.

Kind of nice to see local churches being renovated and the cost of the work being underwritten by parishioners.

Two major projects have been underway here in Andover for some time—at St. Augustine and West Parish churches.

Bishop Alfred Hughes, the Roman Catholic bishop serving this area, will be at St. Augustine's Sunday to bless the new altar as well as the extensive renovations that have been carried out there over the past several months.

The overall project has a price tag in excess of $250,000, and parishioners have come close to meeting that goal, with additional work planned for the rectory, once all the work in the upper and lower churches is completed.

At West Parish, extensive renovation is also underway, with the steeple having been removed to make way for some of the work, which should be completed sometime in the fall.

At a time when religion seems not to be of primary importance to many, it's heartening to see that Andover parishioners are of the opposite ilk and are ensuring that their houses of worship are maintained in the proper manner.

DOWN THE YEARS

100 Years Ago — August 1889

The contract for building an addition and remodeling the old part of the house, occupied by Prof. Comstock on the Hill, has been awarded by the Trustees to Hardy and Cole.

Hardy and Cole's payroll last week was the largest the firm has ever had, 69 men receiving their wages. Mr. Cole pays every Saturday, having made it a practice for ten years.

William P. Allis and family of Williamstown have moved into E.C. Upton's house near Salem St. The young ladies of the family are graduates of Smith College, Northampton.

The past week might be called a night blooming cereus week. There have been fine specimens of the blossoms at the Andover Bookstore, Dr. C.H. Gilbert's, Mrs. Marland's on Chestnut Street, Mrs. Erving's on Salem Street, and one in Frye Village at Alex. Morrison's.

The Niotus nine goes to Lowell tomorrow afternoon to contest with the Vesper Boat Club team in the series of games in the Merrimack Valley Association. The game will be of considerable interest, because if won by the Vespers, they would secure a winning lead for the championship.

It is estimated that there are employed in town at the present time, 160 carpenters, 50 masons, 30 stonelayers, and over 100 laborers of other kinds, all busy building, remodeling, and improving property. And these will soon be augmented by the large waterworks force.

The building season is about over, as far as new work is concerned. The carpenters are busy finishing the many new residences. Those of Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Kimball on Chestnut Street, of Mrs. Roberts and Miss Jackson on Woburn Street, and Mr. Belknap on Central Street, being nearly completed.

Pyam D. Morgan of Ballardvale expects to leave for California next week, and will locate there permanently. Mr. Morgan's health has been poor and he thinks the change will prove beneficial. His friends will surely hope that he will regain strength.

The Sunday Herald contains an account of Andover, in which nothing new to our own people was written, but a condensed description of the schools and several residences and a little of the early history of the town.

Misses Ida Holt and Mary Graffam are spending a few days at Juniper Point, Salem.

Mr. Clarence Bott of Salem is visiting at the home of John Chandler.

THE PUBLIC FORUM

What do you think about the DCS getting cut from the town budget?

'It's nice knowing there's a place for you to go if you don't have your own swimming pool. The popsicles are only 50 cents, and I can come here and read a book and feel safe that there are extra sets of eyes and the kids are OK.'

Caren Vanderley

'One reason people move to a town like Andover is for town programs like DCS's. The money has to come from somewhere. I wouldn't like to see it come out of the schools. It's really a no-win situation.'

Cynthea Givens

'Like most people, I'm sure, I hope the governor by next fiscal year will find more rational ways of restoring the budget, rather than taking money away from the kids.'

Paul Auffermann

Caren Vanderley and her children, Bobby, 3, and Sheena, 5.

Joan Pearson Did DCS Job Well

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

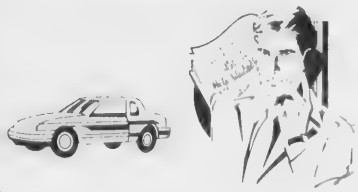

I was shocked and saddened to learn that Joan Pearson, director of the Department of Community Services, would be laid off by Mr. Mahony's budget cuts.

In the six years since our family moved to Andover, we have always felt that what distinguished Andover as a wonderful, liveable town was the DCS and its programs. Joan Pearson as director has served as a symbol of our town—attractive, dedicated to family and community, creative, warm, accessible and successful.

As a professional social worker, I have always envied her position and admired her performance. Cutting a dedicated workaholic like Ms. Pearson is like cutting two people. She will be sorely missed.

Local Tennis Players Net Accomplishment

By Rick Harrison

John McEnroe never did it. Nor did Jimmy Connors ... Andre Agassi ... or Michael Chang.

That illustrious American professional tennis quartet never accomplished as amateurs what local collegians Jeff Chiang of Andover and Mike Shyjan of Chelmsford did recently in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Chiang and Shyjan took the 29th annual USTA Junior Davis Cup Tournament by storm, sweeping the singles, consolation singles and doubles championships.

"Never in the history of the tournament has one team dominated like Jeff and Mike did," said Lowell's Bill Hamilton, pro at the Westford Swim & Tennis Club and the talented tandem's coach for the last three years.

Hamilton closely monitors the progress of the pair, close friends who have been volleying at Westford since both were pre-teens.

And when New England Lawn Tennis Association (NELTA) officials asked him to find the region's top two college players for the Junior Davis Cup he immediately thought of former Andover High star Chiang and Shyjan.

The tournament involved 32 players who comprised 16 two-man teams from 16 designated sections of the country. Each section selected what it considered its two best amateur players, with the stipulation they be underclassmen in college.

The 5-10, 150-pound Chiang is a soon-to-be 21-year-old senior at Columbia University who played who played No. 2 singles last year and will move up to No. 1 at the New York school this season.

The 6-1, 165-pound Shyjan is a 19-year-old sophomore at Harvard, and he'll play either No. 1 or 2 singles for the Crimson this year.

The Junior Davis Cup matches were originally scheduled outdoors on the Poughkeepsie Tennis Club's hardcourts, but continuous rain forced the competition indoors for the final three days.

The location change didn't cause the local pair to miss a beat.

Chiang ripped through five consecutive opponentsto emerge as the national singles' champion.

Ironically Shyjan dropped his opening match to his Harvard teammate and the Crimson's No. 1 player last spring, Mike Zimmerman of New York City, but then won the next four to capture the consolation title.

As a team Chiang-Shyjan dropped just one set in five matches en route to the doubles' crown.

New England won the team title for the first time as well, and Chiang topped the spectacular showing by earning the tournament's Sportsmanship Award.

Four of the Andover flash's five matches were tough ones, as expected, with the lone exception the championship final where he routed an apparently tired Eastern Region rep Zimmerman 6-4, 6-2.

The first four clashes included a pair of tiebreakers and a gruelling three-set semifinal in which Chiang nipped University of Arizona No. 1 Doug Livingston of New Jersey 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 (7-5).

His other opponents were from Minnesota, Puerto Rico and Texas.

In doubles Chiang-Shyjan went to three sets once and to tiebreakers twice, the toughest go in the round-of-16 where a comeback was needed to advance past University of Mississippi teammates Kevin Knowles and Jay Alfono 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

"Chiang is very strong at the baseline," explained Hamilton. "He has exceptional concentration and good foot speed.

"Shyjan has a good blend of power and speed," added the coach. "Sometimes I think he wins his points on sheer will power.

"The key to their success in doubles is they've played together for so long, and they're very supportive of each other."

Following his doubleheader victorysweep at the Junior Davis Cup, Chiang headed directly for upstate New York and the U.S. Amateur Championships.

Understandably tired after the rugged week playing Davis Cup, Chiang won his first U.S. Amateur match but then lost in the second round to eventual finalist Jeb Foley.

Had Jeff gone the route in that tourneyhe would have earned an automatic wild card berth to the qualifying tournament for the upcoming U.S. Open at Forest Hills.

The loss deprived us of the possibility of Michael Chang vs. Jeff Chiang on national TV.

Of course, there's always next year ...

Benefit Tourney Monday

The Glenlivet Scotch Scramble, an amateur charity golf event, will be played at the Andover Country Club on Monday, Aug. 28, as a benefit for the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts, a volunteer health organization dedicated to the eradication of kidney disease.

Sponsored by the Glenlivet Scotch, Northwest Airlines and Taylor Made, organizers expect up to 15,000 golfers to participate nationwide. The local event is limited to 36 foursomes who will compete in a best-ball format for the opportunity to play in the Glenlivet Scotch Scramble sectional playoffs in Florida in December.

The scramble format insures that golfers of varying levels of skill participate in a fun, yet competitive tournament. The small field also ensures that each team will have have an excellent chance at winning a trip to Florida.

The entry fee includes all greens and cart fees, the cost of the luncheon and awards dinner-/banquet and a donation to the Kidney Foundation. For further information, contact the foundation, 180 Rustcraft Road, Dedham 02026.

Indian Ridge Champs Crowned

By Rick Harrison

Indian Ridge Country Club of Andover last weekend crowned its men's women's, junior and junior-junior Club Champions.

In the Men's Division Championship Flite, George Popp roared from six strokes off the pace in the final round to win the title by four shots over third-round leader and eventual runner-up Jim Logue of North Andover.

Popp carded six birdies en route to a clutch 71 on his final tour, finishing the 72-hole test with an even gross score of 300.

Popp cut Logue's six-stroke advantage in half on the first hole of the final round, carding a three to Logue's six.

Logue still retained a slim edge at the tour, but Pop played the final six holes in two under par to win it going away.

Logue fired an 81 on the final day and had a 304 overall.

Third place among the 46 competing Championship Flite golfers was former five-time Indian Ridge champ Jim Holbrook of North Andover, whose 305 included a third-round 74 with a hole-in-one of the par-3, 165-yard seventh hole.

Defending champ Colin Ahern, an Andover resident originally from Tewksbury, carded a 79 on the last day and settled for fourth overall at 306.

Rounding out the leaders was Andover's Ned Yetten at 308.

Four of the top five finishers have strong ice hockey backgrounds.

The 27-year-old Popp, who won his initial IR title but has been Club Champ at Nabnasset in Westford and Nashua Country Club in previous years, was a standout hockey player at Chelmsford High and the University of Lowell.

Logue was a goaltender on the U.S. Olympic team, Ahern starred at Tewksbury High and established many scoring records at Providence College that have since been broken, and Yetten was a goaltender in the Hartford Whalers' farm system for awhile.

Liz McDonough won an unprecedented eighth Indian Ridge women's Club Championship.

The Junior Club title went to Jim O'fria, whose 80-81-161 beat runnerup Jay Stella (167) by six shots.

Earlier in the week Stella had placed sixth in the annual Rogers Junior Tournament with a 78.

Defending titlist Scott Harrington placed fourth this year.

Ken Oppenheim won the special Junior-Junior Club Championship, firing a 66 over the unique 12-hole distance to win by two shots. The Junior-Junior Division is for youngsters ages 13-and-under.

Indian Ridge club pro Dave Lane and golf director Joe Miller were overseers of the event.

Roadeo Is Sunday

The Merrimack Valley Regional Transit Authority's third annual bus "roadeo" will be held Sunday, Aug. 27, from noon to 4 p.m. at the Greater Lawrence Technical School, River Road, Andover.

The roadeo is a driving competition where a bus operator's skills are tested by difficult maneuvers along a pre-determined course. Contestants will also be tested in other areas relating to safe bus operation.

In addition to prizes and trophies awarded to top-ranking participants, the first three finalists will represent the MVRTA in the annual statewide roadeo at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in September.

"Our goals in this endeavor are to enhance the morale of our employees, produce a statewide champion and leave a positive impression on the residents of the communities where we provide transportation service," said Diana M. Zangari, assistant to the authority's administrator.

Puppet Show

Idealism doesn't come very high in Ballardvale. Last Friday five young ladies from the Vale spend considerable time bedecking themselves as "The Ideal Ballardvale Family," and do you know what prize their idealism won at the playground that night? "Funniest-looking," that's what the judges thought of the Vale's ideal.

Everybody had a good time, as everybody in the Vale usually does, when a costume party is held. The youngsters showed that they were just as enterprising as their elders are in Fourth of July parades, and their little parade was something to boast of.

Andover's tax rate will go over thirty dollars for the first time in history, Chairman of the Assessors Howell Shepard stated yesterday. It will, however, not be anywhere near the town meeting estimate, which varied from $32.75 to $34.00. Last year's rate was $29.00, and this year's will be at least a dollar more. However this year's will be a dollar and a half higher than it would ordinarily be, because it will have to include allowance for

Permanent Waves Unisex Salon

l. to r. Gail Bonin, Susan Simard, Judy DeLuca, Wendy Duquette and Priscilla Hebert

The team at Permanent Waves Unisex Salon and Critique Make-up Artistry's uncompromising standard of professionalism and continuing education, has not only brought them success, but has given their clients the utmost satisfaction.

Permanent Waves is rapidly gaining recognition within the community. Outside their busy salon schedule, Judy DeLuca and Susan Simard find time to be teachers at Chippendale's Finishing and Modeling School in North Andover. Judy and Susan have worked with contestants from Miss Hampton Beach and Mrs. Massachusetts, to name a few. They are also the exclusive hairdresser and make-up artist for the Miss Merrimack Valley Pageant.

In correlation with the national cosmetology month campaign celebrated in October, Judy and Susan will be special interest teachers at Northern Essex Community College. They would like to welcome back Priscilla Hebert from a pregnancy leave of absence and welcome aboard Wendy Duquette and Gail Bonin as new members of the staff.

Being a true full service Matrix Salon, they have added Matrix Skin care. These spectacular products deal directly with what's happening to skin in today's world. These products are simple, quick and more efficient than any other skin care product today. Remember: Permanent Waves says "Your expectations will be fulfilled with our expertise".

Permanent Waves unisex Salon is located at 315 East Haverhill Street, Lawrence, at the corner of Marston Street, just off Highway 495 Marston Street exit, in the former C & C Beauty Supply Building. They are open Tuesday through Saturday. Telephone: (508) 975-2134. R.C. Bernal

Amore Hearing Aid Consultants

This tiny, flesh colored plug, no bigger that a toothpaste tube cap, can change the quality of a person's life. "This is the 'canal' hearing aid," said Theresa Manzi Amore, owner of Amore Hearing Consultants of Lawrence. The device is all but lost in her palm. "It fits into the ear canal and is virtually undetectable. Former President Reagan wears one in each ear."

Mrs. Amore deals with small everyday miracles like the canal aid and the slightly larger "all in the ear" model, completely contained in the ear. In here 34 years in the field she has witnessed a revolution, both in hearing aid technology and in the public attitude toward hearing loss.

"When I started out it was considered a catastrophe," she said. People are now better educated about hearing loss."

In 1955, when Mrs. Amore began her work, the standard hearing aid was a cumbersome affair connected to a ear-carried battery pack. Now, six out of ten patients wear the "all in the ear"; other wear canal aids, aids with behind the ear attachments or eyeglass models. The proper aid for a person, Mrs. Amore feels, depends largely upon the degree and type of hearing loss.

Mrs. Amore works with all ages and welcomes Medicaid patients. To maintain her board certification and keep ahead in her field, she must take courses every year.

Although as a Hearing Aid Consultant she test hearing, prescribes, fits and repairs aids, Mrs. Amore emphasizes that her skills complement those of medical specialists they do not replace them. She believes that patients who suspect hearing loss should see a competent specialist.

Amore Hearing Aid Consultants, 101 Amesbury St., Lawrence, is open Mon., Tues., Thurs. and Fri. 9-5 and Wed. and Sat. 9-12. Call 682-4730 for an appointment. Mrs. Amore also has an office in Haverhill at 3 Washington Square. For an appointment in her Haverhill office, call 372-4851.

Capital Improvements

would cost upwards of $50 million, although there could be full cost recovery from betterment fees charged residents hooked up to the central sewer system. Additionally, West Parish Drive residents have petitioned for a $1 million extension to their neighborhood.

Another $1.5 million is proposed to prevent inflow of water from private properties into town sewers and replace old clay sewer lines.

•Although there is no precise estimate on replacing water pipes, several miles of pipe are almost 100 years old and complaints about murky water and blackened water filters are common.

•Water main replacements are needed to improve water quality and pressure in some sections of Andover. Total cost: over $15 million.

The scope of these projects is in most cases longer than the five-year range of the capital improvements plan.

Because in all cases the work entails tearing up asphalt and concrete surfaces, officials hope to coordinate projects whenever possible. For instance, a road needing repaving would be delayed if a water main is installed in the same area.

Financing would be handled in a variety of ways. Road reconstruction, which Mr. McQuade admits is unlikely to be approved by town voters for funding by bond, will probably be dependent on future commercial and industrial tax revenue.

Other projects will be financed through 20-year water and sewer bonds. Betterment fees would also be charged to help pay off bonds.

Other projects totaling more than $1 million include:

•Public safety building expansion—$2.5 million. This project is aimed at expanding the police station and could provide more space for the fire and town maintenance departments and allow for a Department of Power and Water operation center. The proposal would include buying Friendly Ice Cream Stand next to the police station.

An alternative $1 million plan would provide a two-story addition to the existing building and simply maintain an option on Friendly's property.

•New Ballardvale Fire Station—$1.5 million. A new station would be relocated in Ballardvale to "substantially reduce the average running time" to emergencies, says the fire department. The old building would be sold.

•Public works operations center—$3 million. Housed in a two-story building would be the public works and maintenance departments. Town officials say the center would bring "most similiar town activities onto one site in one facility for better management control and teamwork."

•Major building repair program—up to $1 million. This project would carry out major repair work to schools and other town buildings.

•School roof replacement—$1.5 million. Sanborn and Bancroft elementary and Andover High schools would benefit from roof replacement.

•Asbestos removal—$3 million. Although not yet absolutely required by state law, town officials say the state will probably mandate total asbestos removal in the future; doing the work now would avoid potential fines and lawsuits.

•Replace school heating systems—$1.75 million. About $250,000 would go to replace a 25-year-old boiler. The balance pays for a new electrical heating system at Andover High in place of current 20-year-old system.

•Outside reading meters—$750,000. Mr. McQuade says outside meters would be linked to town hall computers by telephone line. The new technology would result in monthly billings for residents and save meter reading and clerical expenses for the town.

Other projects listed include money for police cruisers and portable radios; fire trucks; a vehicle maintenance garage; replacing forestry garage; a central receiving room to store bulk paper shipments; and purchase of the Richmond property for downtown parking.

Some of these projects won't make the five-year plan because the town plans to consolidate them with other projects, the report indicated.
